

College Access & Success Mapping Project

September 2016

Graduate NYC launched the NYC College Access & Success Mapping Project with generous support from the Michael & Susan Dell Foundation, the Booth Ferris Foundation and the New York Community Trust. Through this project and with the engagement of the college access and success community, this interactive map was created to communicate the breadth and depth of this work happening in New York City to local and national stakeholders.

As part of the Mapping Project, a total of 164 organizations providing 201 college access and success programs were surveyed for information about their services, the individuals they serve, and where they are providing college access and success support in the NYC area. The organizations surveyed for this project typically serve low-income students, first-generation college-goers, racial/ethnic minorities and other groups typically underrepresented among college degree holders.

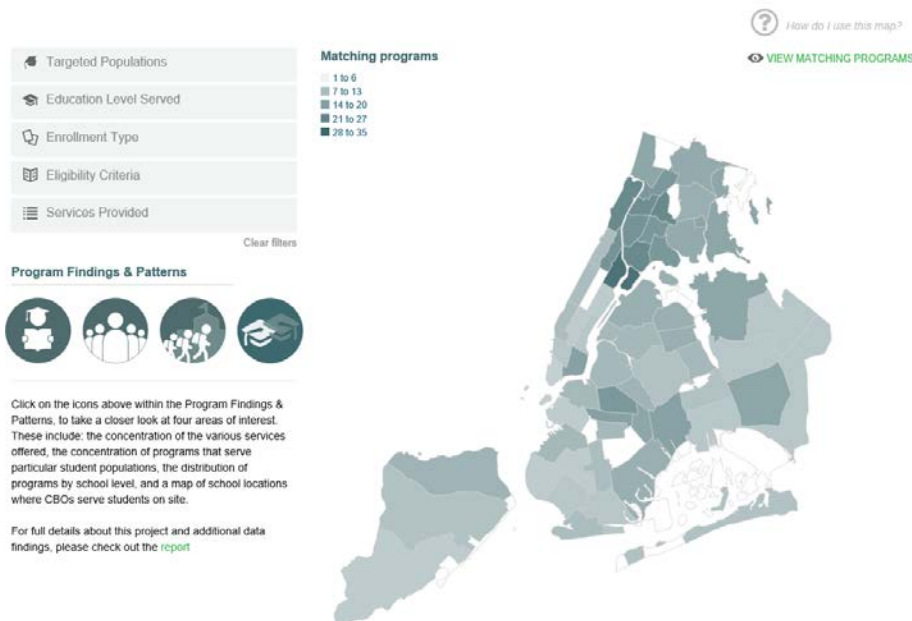

The map images focus on the college access and success programs, rather than the organizations implementing them. Most programs (191) provide services directly to individuals in need, while a few (10) provide services to the sector as a whole, such as technical assistance, professional development for staff and relevant research. Due to the difference in data collected between the two, the map images only reflect data provided by college access and success programs that serve individuals directly. The Listing page includes a listing for all programs.

The Map Homepage

The map images represent the locations where college access and success programs are serving their respective populations.

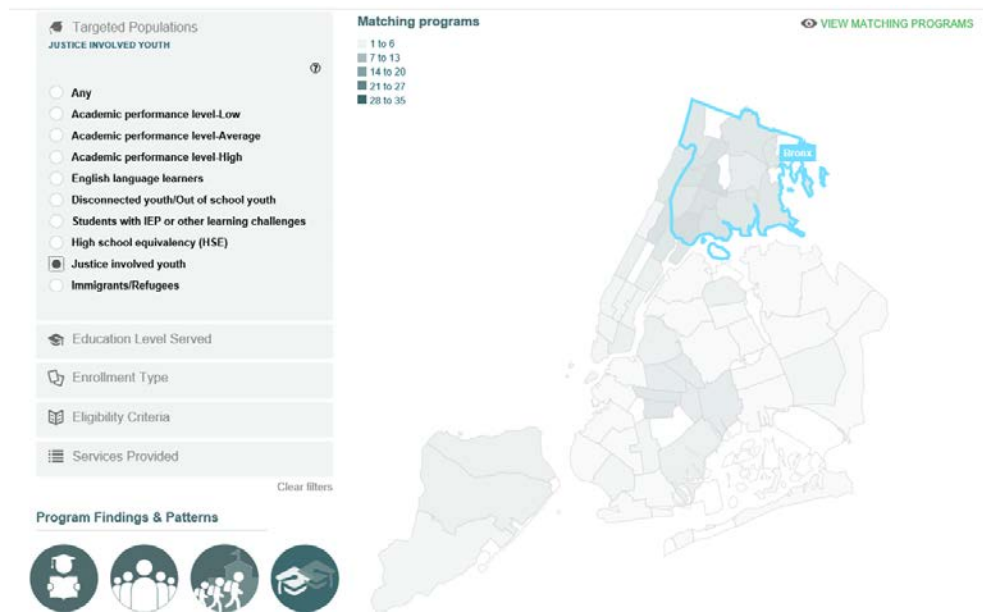

To view neighborhoods, along with the number of programs serving that neighborhood:

- Hover over the borough of interest
- For more information about programs, double click on the neighborhood selected
- Select “View Matching Programs” at the top of the menu to bring up a page with more detailed information for the programs servicing the borough or neighborhood selected
- Filter criteria can be changed from this page by using the menu on the left
- To toggle back to the map, click “View Map” at the top of the menu

To filter by various criteria:

- Use the menu on the left side of the page to apply different filters to the map
- Available filters include neighborhood, targeted population, education level served, enrollment type, eligibility criteria and types of services provided
- For example, by selecting the “Justice involved youth” filter under Targeted Populations, the user will be shown the number of college access and success programs that have specific expertise in working with justice involved youth and in which borough(s)/neighborhood(s) they typically provide services
- More than one filter may be applied at a time

Program Findings and Patterns

The website also includes a section called Program Findings & Patterns, which provides an in-depth view of several areas of interest. These include: the concentration of the various services offered, the concentration of programs that serve some of New York City’s most vulnerable students, the distribution of programs by school level, and a map of CBOs with lists of the schools where they serve students on site.

To view the full details about the project and additional data findings, please read our report, which can be found here: <http://www.graduatenyc.org/wp-content/uploads/2016/09/GNYCFinalReport.pdf>